Speaking out for parks and trails

Join us for Active Transportation Advocacy Day March 13

This is one Advocacy Day you won't want to miss!

Over breakfast we'll hear from Washington, D.C.-based Transportation for America on how to make the most of the new transportation bill, MAP-21.

We'll meet with key state lawmakers to make the case for trails and community infrastructure that supports bicycling and walking.

We'll join with other trails and bike-ped advocates demonstrating a broad base of support as part of New Yorkers for Active Transportation.

Register by March 11. Get more information.

Park supporters gather at Capitol

Park supporters from across the state - including Friends group members, regional park commissioners, environmental advocates, and citizen activists - came to Albany for the 7th annual Park Advocacy Day on March 5. Event co-sponsors Parks & Trails New York and the Alliance for New York State Parks kicked off the event at The University Club with special guests State Parks Commissioner Rose Harvey, Senators Betty Little and Mark Grisanti, and Assemblymembers Kevin Cahill and Margaret Markey

Park supporters spent the rest of the day meeting with nearly 60 policymakers to urge support for parks, in particular the Governor's proposed \$90 million for infrastructure needs at state parks and historic sites, Pennies for Parks legislation, and enhanced funding for the Environmental Protection Fund. Thank you to everyone who joined us in Albany to be a part of these critical meetings.

Couldn't make it to Albany for Park Advocacy Day? You can still support state parks by contacting your state Assemblymember and Senator (see our talking points). Budget negotiations are happening now, so your calls are important in order to keep the momentum for parks going.

Celebrating 20 years of the EPF

Parks & Trails New York joined with its coalition partners in the Friends of New York's Environment for EPF lobby day on March 6. The Environmental Protection Fund, which marks its 20th anniversary this year, supports programs that protect local parks and farms, support waterfront revitalization and trails, and much more - all while providing a $7-$1 return on investment for the state.

Governor Cuomo's proposed budget enhances the EPF by $19 million, for a total of $153 million, and represents the first step in realizing the shared vision of state leaders and the environmental community to continue to enhance the EPF in future years.

Recognition Award

Parks & Trails New York is seeking nominations for its 2013 Park & Trail Recognition Awards. The awards recognize the leadership, creativity, and donation of time, talent, and materials behind many of New York's parks and trails.

Awards will be given in five categories. The Public Leadership, Volunteer Service, and Corporate Partnership Awards recognize contributions to planning, design, construction, stewardship, management, promotion, and/or public involvement for a park or trail project or program. The Get Outdoors Award celebrates efforts to promote increased physical activity through use of a park or trail. The open-ended Outside the Box Award recognizes unique and creative park or trail efforts.

More information and a nomination form. The deadline for submitting nominations is March 26, 2013. Winners will be announced May 15, 2013.

PTNY Growing the Grassroots grant leads to river group's dramatic fundraising success

A PTNY Growing the Grassroots grant helped the Friends of the Chemung River Watershed in the Southern Tier develop their fundraising skills, leading to some remarkable results. The group used the grant to hire a consultant who trained the organization's board and staff and advised them on solicitation letters and mailing list development.

As a result, in the last year the group raised $12,327 and increased annual membership by 83%.

"We now have the knowledge, experience, and resources to expand and improve our fundraising goals which will allow us to better protect and maintain our waterways and riverside trails," said Jim Pffifer, Executive Director of the Friends of the Chemung River Watershed.

In memoriam: trails visionary John F. Brown Jr., 85

The staff and Board of PTNY received with heavy hearts the news of the death of John Brown of Schenectady, age 85. A trails visionary and activist since the 1960's, John understood from the outset that a statewide trails network would bring a wide variety of benefits to New Yorkers, from protection of local natural habitats to enhancement of community health.
